A Study on Culture of Ancient India

The Indian Culture is the heritage of belief system, technologies, values, language, social norms and traditions which had originated from India.

Content

India has always been diverse in terms of culture; this is so because of many invasions and different rulers having influence over the Indian-subcontinent. After each invasion or change in power, new kingdoms brought in their respective cultures which added itself to the Indian culture. We can say each and every religion, kingdom and person has some or the other in making India's culture as diverse as it is today.

India has different dances, languages, religions, dance, music, food, architecture and rituals in nearly every region of the country. Rice cultivation was brought to India from South East Asia through the north-eastern entry of India. Now rice cultivation is a major part of Indian agriculture.

Sanskrit and Pali were the originally spoken languages in India; later other languages such as Hindi, Urdu, and English came to use after foreign invasions or the development of the manuscript; for example, the Devanagari script.

Religion

India has been the birthplace of several major religions. Hinduism, Jainism, and Buddhism originated in India around 500 to 400 BCE. These Indian-origin religions are founded on the principles of Dharma and Karma: Dharma encompasses one's ideologies and moral duties, while Karma refers to the actions and efforts one undertakes.

Over time, India saw the introduction and flourishing of other religions. Following the Muslim invasions and the establishment of the Delhi Sultanate, Islam gained significant prominence in India. Christianity became an influential religion after the British colonization of India, integrating into the country's religious landscape. Furthermore, India has embraced Sikhism, which originated in the region, along with Zoroastrianism and Judaism, contributing to the diverse tapestry of religious practices in the country.

Philosophy

Indian culture is renowned for its extensive and ancient scriptures. Among the earliest and most revered are the Vedas, which are foundational texts of Hinduism written in Sanskrit. The Vedas are divided into four main collections:

- Rig Veda
- Yajur Veda
- Atharva Veda

- Sama Veda

Beyond the Vedas, other significant texts include the Upanishads and Puranas, which offer profound insights into human life and religious philosophy. The Bhagavad Gita, another crucial text, was also composed in India.

Tradition and Cultural Values

India can be called a country which is still connected to its root traditions. There is a good point and also a bad point to it. Firstly the bad point is that there is discrimination based on social status. It was observed in ancient times that divisions in the society were made based on caste and somehow it is still prevailing in limited amounts. On the brighter side, Indian cultural values are still intact as children still respect their parents and treat them next to god. Indians always join their hands and bend down to say 'Namaste' in order to respect a guest or a person as a greeting

Course Outcomes

India undoubtedly has a great history and the Indian cultural values along with the Indian culture and tradition make India's past very rich. If we can utilize the good points in the country's history we can again become the great country we once were.

- 1) Introduction to the Indian culture and civilization
- 2) Indian view on aims and Organisation of life
- 3) ancient Indian contribution to Science and Technology

Institution Runs Cell Which Safeguards all Inclusive Environment

Equal Opportunity Cell

At Indira Mahavidyalaya, Kalmab, the institution pride ourselves on fostering an environment that champions inclusivity and equality in education. In line with the constitutional mandate to bridge societal disparities, institution diligently implements policies set forth by the University Grants Commission (UGC) to promote accessibility, parity, and excellence in higher education.

Embracing diversity as a cornerstone, the institution have established Equal Opportunity Centres (EOCs) within campus, dedicated to providing guidance, counselling, and fostering social inclusion for marginalized groups including SCs, STs, women, OBCs, minorities, and the physically challenged. These EOCs function as catalysts for equity, community sensitization, grievance redressal, and dissemination of welfare initiatives. Under the oversight of an Advisory Committee, chaired by esteemed Principal, EOCs tirelessly work towards the effective implementation of welfare schemes.

Supported by an experienced Adviser who facilitates scheme execution and liaises with pertinent committees, the institution ensure that every member of educational community has the opportunity to thrive and excel, irrespective of background or circumstance.

Guidelines of UGC are as follows,

1. Introduction:

India is a country of diversity, characterized by various religions, castes, and cultures. However, it also harbors a highly entrenched system of social stratification, leading to social inequalities and barriers to access resources for disadvantaged groups such as SCs, STs, women, OBCs, minorities, and physically challenged individuals. Despite demographic changes, a large portion of the population remains disadvantaged and marginalized. Historical injustices have perpetuated social disabilities for SCs, STs, and women, while minorities face deficits in various dimensions of development. To address these issues, legislation like the Person with Disabilities Act 1995 was enacted post-independence, aiming to undo social wrongs and democratize education. However, historical education disparities persist, necessitating efforts for social and economic equality in higher education.

2. Aims and Objectives:

To oversee effective implementation of policies and programs for disadvantaged groups, provide guidance and counseling on academic, financial, and social matters, and enhance campus diversity.

3. Functions:

- i. Ensure equity and equal opportunity, promoting social inclusion.
- ii. Enhance diversity among students, teaching, and non-teaching staff, eliminating discrimination perception.
- iii. Foster a socially congenial atmosphere for academic interaction and interpersonal relationships among students from diverse backgrounds.
- iv. Sensitize the academic community to problems of social exclusion and aspirations of marginalized communities.
- v. Assist individuals or groups from disadvantaged sections in addressing discrimination issues.
- vi. Address grievances of weaker sections and suggest solutions.
- vii. Disseminate information on welfare schemes and programs.
- viii. Establish barrier-free procedures for admission/registration of disadvantaged students.
- ix. Coordinate with government and agencies to mobilize resources for disadvantaged students.
- x. Monitor scheme progress through periodic meetings.
- xi. Ensure equitable utilization by SC/STs in admissions and recruitments, enhancing performance.
- xii. Sensitize the college community to problems of SC/STs and other disadvantaged groups.

4. Advisory Committee:

An Advisory Committee, chaired by the Principal and comprising an Adviser and three other members, reviews implementation of welfare schemes, reservation policies, and related activities. The Adviser oversees scheme implementation, SC/ST Cells, and other social issue committees, submitting progress reports to the Principal.

According To Guidelines Following Constitution of Committee and Assigning of The Roles Should Be Maintained
